*"Don't it always seem to go,
that you don't know what you got till it's gone..."*
— Joni Mitchell

Across the nation, the battle is on to save the values Democrats hold most dear. On the gulf coast victims of Hurricane Katrina are fighting Bush administration bureaucrats (and cronies) to rebuild and protect their own neighborhoods. In our nation's capitol the religious right is attempting to drown out the voices of reason on appointments to our highest court.

In our region, nowhere is this battle over values more fierce – the consequences more stark - than in the race for King County Executive.

Democrat Ron Sims has been a visionary force for every value we care deeply about: from protecting family wage paychecks to creating ten of thousands of new jobs; from building a wall against sprawl to preserving hundreds of thousand of acres of green space; from getting light rail back on track, to bringing real reform our health care system; from fighting for equality and justice, to defending children, seniors and the poor.

At every turn, Ron Sims has been proud to wear the label "Democrat" and unashamed to stand up for our core beliefs.

Perhaps that is why the Republicans have focused on him like a laser beam, uncorking a Karl Rovian concoction of specious allegations and last-minute election tricks designed to get just enough Democrats to think twice, maybe even sit this one out.

Don't fall for it.

The person picked to lead the effort to keep you seated is one David Irons, a candidate backed by the Bush/Cheney Republican machine, far-right ideologues and gambling lobbyists. Someone with a less than stellar track record in the private sector he claims as his strong suit. Someone who has worked overtime on the public dime (as a member of the County Council) trying to defeat democratic values.

Our message to them on November 8th: "Sorry, we're not buying."

Here's why:

Ron Sims and Leadership

Ron's record as County Executive is unmatched. He is known nationwide as a leader unafraid to make tough decisions and willing to stand up for every member of our community.

Ron's Fiscal Leadership

Since becoming Executive in 1996 Ron faced serious budget shortfalls head-on, making the cuts and increasing government performance, while protecting services to the most vulnerable. He reduced the number of county departments from 13 to 9, cut $137 million, eliminated a chronic structural deficit and earned the county one of the highest credit ratings in the nation; all of it during one of the worse economic downturns in recent memory.

Irons and fiscal management: bankrupt ideas. A person who is anchoring his campaign on private sector experience has a decidedly mixed record. Irons helped steer his Brigadoon company into bankruptcy and dissolution.

Ron's Environmental Record

Ron is a national leader in environmental protection. When he became Executive there were only 24,000 acres of farm land and open space in preservation – today there are over 125,000 acres. Ron has protected endangered salmon, prevented California-style sprawl from engulfing King County, preserved our rural areas for future generations, pushed for new clean air and clean water protections, and invested in hybrid and bio-diesel technologies in the Metro bus fleet. Ron is building the state-of-the-art Brightwater treatment plant to protect Puget Sound from unclean wastewater discharge.

On parks, trails and recreation, Ron is simply the best. Under his leadership King County's regional trails network has grown to over 175 miles - including the newly opened East Lake Sammamish Trail - with a commitment to building 300 total miles.

Irons and the environment: unhappy trails. Irons has long opposed rules to prevent sprawl and protect open space. He fought the popular East Lake Sammamish Trail, opposed funding for expanding Metro bus service, and even proposed a study to build a $1.4 billion mega-freeway through the Snoqualmie Valley.

Ron Sims and Transportation

Ron's strong opposition to I-912 (the transportation funding repeal initiative) has deep roots. When state funding for transit disappeared, Ron led the successful effort protect Metro transit service.

Ron led the successful turnaround of Sound Transit and got light rail going. Construction is underway on a system that will swiftly move riders from downtown to the airport.

Ron Sims has been a leading advocate for replacing the Alaskan Way Viaduct and the 520 bridge and the first major public office holder to declare his strong opposition to I-912.

Irons on 912 and transportation: go figure. His party supports it and initially, the republican refused to take a public stand on I-912 (Seattle P-I editorial 10/9/05). After considerable public pressure, he now says he's against it (Seattle P-I 10/13/05). Which Irons should we believe? Irons has long opposed light rail, voted against preserving Metro transit and other common sense traffic solutions.

Jobs, Jobs, Jobs

Ron Sims' record on growing family wage jobs is a matter of record. The Brightwater treatment plant alone will bring more than 20,000 high wage jobs and a half billion dollar payroll to the region, including more than 6,000 in the construction trades. Light rail construction, which Sims championed, is putting thousands to work right now. As County Executive, Sims created employment programs for developmentally disabled adults to provide them with independent means of living. Sims' King County Job Initiative prepares thousands of lower income people to move up to higher wages by offering invaluable training.

Irons and jobs: where's the beef? Irons appeared at rally in Woodinville last month to oppose the Brightwater plan, which he had previously voted for (Seattle Times "

"Brightwater Foes Rally" 10/9/05). He opposed light rail from the beginning. (Irons/McKenna press release 1/8/02)

Southwest Airlines

After a thorough review of proposals from Southwest and Alaska Airlines (as required by federal law), Ron rejected the proposals to move to Boeing Field because they failed three critical tests – laid down by Sims – that could not be overcome (noise, traffic and public subsidy).

Irons on Southwest: cloudy skies. According to the Seattle Times, Irons appeared to both support and oppose the Southwest move at the same time. It all depended on his audience (Seattle Times "Irons says Southwest Statements consistent" 9/23/05).

Health Care Reform

Ron is leading a four-county effort to reform our broken, inefficient health care delivery system. The Puget Sound Health Alliance, which he chairs, represents over 700,000 workers and families members and places the employee's health – not profits - at the center of reform. For King County employees, Ron has improved the quality of care and radically lowered cost growth - without cutting benefits.

Iron's leadership on health care reform: unknown.

Justice & Equality

Ron has an unequal record defending justice and equality for all people. After the passage of I-200 he ensured that disadvantaged businesses would still be able to participate in county contracts. Sims has created employment programs for the developmentally disabled, and a fully-accessible Metro bus system.

Throughout his career Ron has fought for the extension of full civil rights for all. On the council he successfully fought attempts to overturn the county's ordinance banning employment discrimination based on sexual orientation and ensured domestic partnership benefits for county employees.

Ron supports marriage equality and last year worked with lesbian and gay couples to bring a suit now before the Washington State Supreme Court, examining the constitutionality of Washington State's Defense of marriage Act (DOMA)

The Irons record on equality and justice: the jury has made its verdict. Irons organized against a 2005 ordinance barring discrimination based on gender identity, and opposed an ordinance requiring county contractors to provide equal benefits to domestic partners.

For those who hold democratic values close to heart, the stakes in this election couldn't be higher. The choice couldn't be clearer. Please join me in supporting Ron Sims, Democrat for King County Executive.

PUBLIC COMMITMENT—

Ron Sims has dedicated his life to public service. After graduating from college he worked in the Consumer Protection Division of the Washington State Attorney General's office. He later went on to the Federal Trade Commission where he fought against consumer fraud and abuse. Recruited to run the City of Seattle's juvenile offender program, Ron remained head of the program until becoming a legislative aide in the Washington State Senate.

An active volunteer, Ron has a long history of community involvement. As a lay minister Ron volunteered for Operation Nightwatch, which serves homeless individuals in the City of Seattle. A long-time football and baseball coach for the Rainier Valley sports leagues, Ron was also a regular tutor at Meany Middle School for many years. Founder of both Pista sa Nasyon, Seattle's Filipino American Community Festival, and the Paul Robeson Scholar Athlete Awards, which honors young athletes who excel in education, Ron's community dedication has been felt in every corner of the Puget Sound region. An election observer for the Carter Center in both Zambia and the Republic of Georgia, Ron's public service career expands well beyond Washington State. Ron is a member of both Boule and the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

It was Ron's term as Board President for South East Effective Development (SEED) - a neighborhood advocacy organization focused on economic development located in southeast Seattle - that launched his political career.

King County Democrats
Monthly Meeting Minutes—October 25, 2005
Renton Carpenters Hall

The Chair called the meeting to order; Vice Chair Gurine Nordby led the flag salute. A moment of silence was observed for the passing of Civil Rights Champion Rosa Parks, and for the 2,000 men and women who gave their lives in service to country in Iraq. Previous meeting minutes and agenda were approved.

Officer and Committee reports were delivered including Vice Chair of Elections, Gurine Nordby, thanking everyone who worked at the polls and recount activity.

New Business included successful endorsements for:

- The City of Seattle Advisory Measure No. 1, Health Care as presented by former 11th LD Representative Gene Lux
- Issaquah City Council Position 5— Maureen McCarry and Maple Valley City Council Position 5—Glenn T. Smith as presented by 5th LD Chair, Kayne McGladry. Kayne also presented the contentious debate in Issaquah over land/road development. The hat was passed for the 5th LD to disburse to their endorsed candidates.
- Redmond City Council Position 4— Kimberly Allen as presented by 48th LD Chair Ben Von Ullrich.
- KCDCC Officers committee resolution on 2006 Caucus Scheduling as presented by committee chair, Gwen Rench (see page 7) was passed with friendly amendments for “wordsmith’ing” on titling and paragraphs 2 and 3.

King County Executive Ron Sims addressed the group and helped present Certificates of Appreciation to Emily Willoughby and Gurine Nordby for their exceptional efforts during the Primary Election and Recount activity.

District Chairs reported ongoing effort in support of endorsed candidates and noted special events.

After the break, 45th Legislative District member Eric Oernig presented a “train the trainer” look at recruiting new Precinct Committee Officers. His approach was business-like with audience participation. Eric’s work is being put into MS PowerPoint format for distribution and access to all via the KCDCC website.

Linnea Peterson conducted the raffle resulting in $327.00.

Good of the Order included announcement of Lloyd Hara fundraiser in Bellevue, 10/30—3:00 pm (listed at website calendar). Survey results will be presented in November. Meeting was adjourned at 9:05 pm.

Respectfully submitted by Susan Sheary for Angela Henry, on travel in Alabama

Before you vote on Initiative 330 this November, be sure to read the fine print.

I-330 would force you to give up your right to your day in court - and gives the insurance industry many hidden benefits at your expense.

Vote NO on I-330 - It's the wrong solution.

Resolution Regarding Scheduling Caucus in 2006

Whereas the large turnout for the February, 2004 Caucuses was not due to their being held on a Saturday but rather was attributable to the highly contested and aggressively pursued Presidential nomination campaigns, to the lack of a true Presidential primary in Washington state, and to the amount of anger toward the policies of President Bush;

Whereas the proxy system in 2004 was not effective in safeguarding or enabling the participation of Democrats who observe certain religious faiths, thereby disenfranchising a major segment of Democratic supporters and voters;

Whereas to insist on Saturday caucuses discriminates against those of certain religious faiths, just as it is considered inappropriate to hold the caucuses on a Sunday due to the conflict with other religions.

Whereas to hold the caucuses on a Saturday, results in greater costs for rental of caucus sites;

Therefore Be It Resolved that the King County Democrats Central Committee opposes having the 2006 caucuses on a Saturday and further, that this opposition be communicated to the WSDCC and to all the King County representatives to the WSDCC.

Passed by KCDCC, Tuesday October 25, 2005
Susan C. Sheary
KCDCC Chair

with John Bowman and Kjell Bjorgen

A regular on The Daily Show with Jon Stewart and star of the enormously popular HBO Special Black on Broadway, Black brings subversive wit, intellectual honesty and utter hilarity to everything - especially politics. On this subject he plays no favorites and takes no prisoners. He shouts. He swears. He can barely speak. He boils over at the sheer lunacy of it all. And he is ferociously, volcanically funny.

FOR IMMEDIATE PRESS RELEASE:

Re: Politicizing King County Records and Elections Activities

I am appalled at the level to which the Republican Party has gone in trying to embarrass and demean the work of the King County Records and Elections Department. It would appear that the GOP has not contacted the department to inquire about procedures for voter registration -- They seem to be looking at public records, but never giving the department an opportunity for explanation.

The GOP seems intent on press coverage of any question, no matter how small the issue. The Secretary of State's office has provided a multitude of information, all seemingly ignored by the GOP.

Director Logan took on a very difficult job before the last general election— implementing new 'off-the-shelf' software applications, upgrading procedures and processes, providing new training internally and externally — under a GOP microscope, all the while.

It is time for the GOP to come to the table as problem solvers and not flame throwers. Every issue they have raised is for political gain and not for the greater good of the voting population of King County.

We all need to learn to work together and make the election process as error-free as possible.

Thank you, signed by KCDCC Chair

WORSE THAN WATERGATE

10/28/2005—Democratic National Committee Chairman Howard Dean issued the following statement:

"This is a sad day for America.

"Beyond the evidence that the White House manipulated the intelligence used to justify the war in Iraq, a group of senior White House officials not only orchestrated efforts to smear a critic of the war, but worked to cover up this smear campaign. In so doing, they ignored the rule of law, endangering our national security and the brave men and women who dedicate their lives to protecting our nation's security. I. Lewis Libby was a part of this internal White House group.

"This is not only an abuse of power, it is an un-American abuse of the public trust. As Americans, we must hold ourselves and our leaders to a higher standard. We cannot fear dissent. We cannot fear the truth. And we cannot tolerate those who do.

"More importantly, we can't ignore the glaring questions this case has raised about the rationale the Bush Administration used to send us to war in Iraq, a war that continues. American soldiers are still in harms way. Over 2,000 brave Americans have lost their lives, thousands of American soldiers have been wounded, and thousands of American families have made the ultimate sacrifice. Still, the President has no plan and no exit strategy. And still he hasn't answered the question, what are we doing in Iraq and when can our troops come home?

"President Bush faces a serious test of leadership; will he keep his pledge to hold his Administration to high ethical standards and give the American people what they deserve, and will he answer to the American people for these serious missteps?"
